

Hunters

ISSUE 1 | AUGUST 1896

In this issue:

UPDATES ON LORD
PABHAM INVESTIGATION

HOW HUNTING MADE
IT'S WAY INTO MIDDLE-CLASS LIVES

PARTICIPATION OF WOMEN IN HUNTING TOOK A MASSIVE LEAP OVER THE LAST DECADE.
WOMEN-LED OR ALL-WOMEN EXPEDITIONS ARE GETTING REMARKABLE RESPONSES.

Featured:

FOXES AND HOUNDS
HOW TO IDENTIFY

PREPARATION
GUIDELINES BEFORE
YOU GO OUT HUNTING

Davies' Huntsmen Lounge

EST 1814

SUPPLIERS OF THE FINEST HUNTING GEARS FOR OVER 80 YEARS

For Explorers of all generation!

VARIOUS RANGES OF DRESSES AND ACCESSORIES AVAILABLE FOR MEN AND WOMEN

Visit Our Store
221B Baker Street, London

NEWS ALERT

INVESTIGATION STILL GOING ON LORD PABHAM!

It is definitely not the first time that Lord Pabham has raised public concern. It has always been an established rumour that this lord has a very enriched collection of fierce pets - hidden away from the public eyes, in his personal estate.

It is said that Lord Pabham owns wild pets like Hyenas, which is not only illegal but is also a constant fear for his neighbours and the travellers of the southern countryside route. No matter how tamed and trained beasts they get mentioned as, it is impossible to not be afraid of the furious most members of the canidae family that can get back to its ancestral self anytime. There have been several reports of mishaps - both official and informal - in areas near Lord Pabham's park in the last few years.

However, no such evidence was found in previous investigations. Last year, following a 'missing' complaint of his neighbor - claiming that the Lord's pet ravished his sheep and chickens, a detailed investigation was carried out on that estate. Turned out it was just his olingo, which is a known herbivore, escaped the park's boundary. Yet the lord was made to compensate his neighbour by buying him over 10 sheep and hundreds of chickens.

However, the question still remained, if the Lord was not at fault behind all these, what was the fine about? Were there really captivated wild animals inside the Lord's estate that the people were not disclosed about?

As these questions kept mounting, the court decided to investigate Lord Pabham once again. This got initialised by several missing reports of domestic pets as well as a few gypsy children from the same areas around. Further updates on this investigation can hopefully be published on the next volume of this magazine. Stay tuned for more!

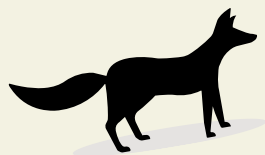

Featured:

FOXES AND HOUNDS – HOW TO IDENTIFY YOUR HUNT

Both Foxes and Hounds are parts of the Canidae family – one type, the men's best mate and the other their favourite things to hunt down. Infact, hounds are a known partner at hunting to track down the fallen animal. However, sometimes people still manage to confuse them. Following are the few distinct differences that would help you decide which Canidae to pet and which to run away from:

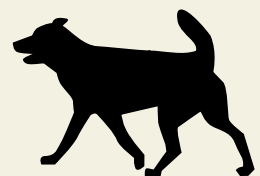

FOXES

- TYPICALLY SMALLER IN SIZE
- HAS SLENDER BODY
- BUSHY TAIL
- POINTED EARS
- DISTINCT MUZZLE
- VARIOUS RANGES OF FUR COLOUR INCLUDING, - RED, GREY, BROWN, AND WHITE.
- KNOWN FOR BEING CUNNING AND EASY ADAPTABILITY
- OPPORTUNISTIC OMNIVORES (WOULD HUNT ITS FOOD EITHER WAY)
- NOCTURNAL (MORE ACTIVE DURING DAWN AND DUSK)
- GOOD AT HIDING TO AVOID PREDATORS
- OTHER THAN HUNTING IT, THEY SERVE TO CONTROL PESTS IN FARMLANDS.

HOUNDS

- HAS DIFFERENT SIZES AND TYPES
- GENERALLY HAVE A STRONG, ATHLETIC BUILD
- HAVE A KEEN SENSE OF SMELL
- VERY WELL-DEVELOPED SENSES
- MOSTLY DOMESTICATED DOGS BRED SPECIFICALLY FOR HUNTING PURPOSES
- EXCELLENT IN TRACKING DOWN HUNTS (BOTH THROUGH SCENT AND SIGHT)
- SOMETIMES USED AS RESCUE DOGS

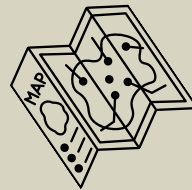

PREPARING FOR A HUNTING EXPEDITION:

A complete guideline before you go out Hunting

1. SELECT YOUR TIME AND LOCATION

Keep in mind what you want to hunt, the weather, ecosystem and distance from your place

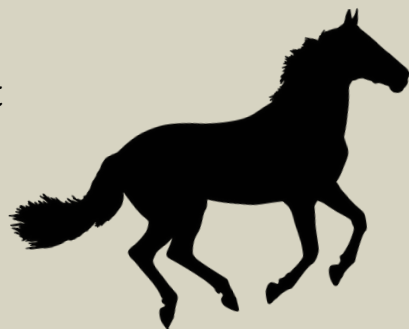

2. GET YOUR PARTNERS

Always keep in mind, hunting expeditions are better in groups - the bigger the group, the more experience you combine, the better you enjoy

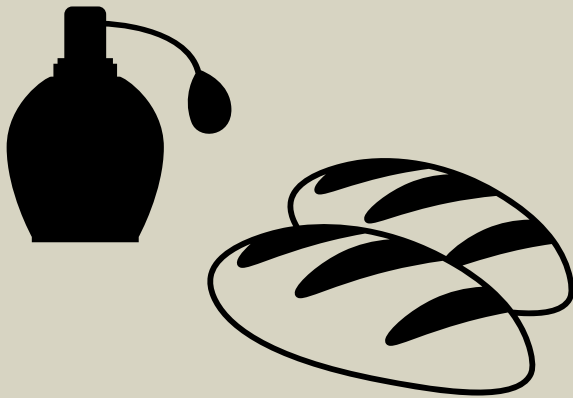

3. CHECK YOUR RIDES AND TRACKERS

It is extremely important that that whole groups horses and tracker hounds are well fed and taken care of before starting for such expedition. Make sure everyone has their personal rides. Wagons - if manageable - are helpful to carry back your hunts.

4. WHAT ELSE TO PACK!

Carry water and dry foods only sufficient for the period of time you plan to spend hunting. Remember, if you take more than what you need, it is always your burden to carry.

- Firearms and bullets
- Bows with sufficient arrows
- Firearm cleaning kit
- Knives of different shapes/sizes
- Proper hunting clothes - not too bright, that allows camouflage; if possible waterproof
- Boots suitable for weather condition
- Hats, Binoculars
- Carry Bags/Sacks
- Ropes and hooks
- For overnight stays, tent or shelter
- Dry wood if going to a rainforest region

Practice signals as whole pack for the expedition

If possible, learn a bit about the local wildlife, including potentially dangerous animals

If you are carrying new weapons, practice and familiarise yourself with it before

Practice shooting for more accuracy and camp set-ups if necessary.

GIPSIES – WHERE AND HOW ARE THEY NOW?

The current times have seen major change in society, industry and culture. The same way globalisation and colonialism has brought diversity in terms of matter into Great Britain, it has also carried in people from different parts of the world. Among all, the ones specifically from Rome more commonly referred to as 'Gypsies' lead an unique and often misunderstood way of life and existence.

Their silent struggle and rebellion to not outgrow their cultures and traditions and accept the modern civilization left them with no place among the 'civilised'. Their ways of living in tents and caravans make it look like they are outcasts and eventually forcing them to adapt to this social ignorance. People were soon to start treating them like thieves, beggars or every possible negative role as they declined living under concrete roofs. These made it extremely challenging for them to find proper jobs, get proper education or get into the 'civilised' society.

Their helplessness was further enraged with laws and acts that restricted movements and way of life in the early 1800's. Nowadays they mostly reside within the forests, frequently moving from place to place in search of work and food.

These gypsies have been trying to carry forward their tradition with the price of their lives and livelihood. Storytelling, music, and crafts are not only part of their identity but now the only way to preserve their existence in memory.

Unfortunately, following several attempts to inform people of the reality behind these ways of life, they still consider gypsies as threats and try to avoid their presence as much as possible. Killing a gypsy – intentionally or not – is often not considered a crime, let alone reporting. Several investigations concluded in a suspicious reduction in their population! For how long will these people have to live like criminals inside their own country?

Current events

Hunting - an expensive hobby gaining popularity among the middle class and Women

The current reign in England has witnessed several remarkable shifts in social norms and free time activities. The good old hunting, which was always a pleasure trip for the men of the elite class, is now getting more common and accessible to both women and people of the middle class. This marks a historic change in dynamics of roles beyond gender and social boundaries.

The ease of access to transportation, mainly due to the development of railway and motor vehicle communication throughout the country, has made it easier for more middle class people to travel to the rural forest areas and take part in hunting expeditions which seemed too luxurious decades ago. Even though all the accessories & equipment - including a horse to ride, its well-being, arms and ammunition, altogether is quite an expensive package. The ease of travel has relaxed personal expenses a bit in a sense that the middle class hunters personally do not need to take the complete preparation. Rather if someone has skills and experience, they get included as an asset to the more 'elite' teams.

Similar windows opened as women hunters were leading the best of their times. In most cases, they prefer going separately on a different expedition from their partners, out enjoying the leisure on their own, and requires an experienced guide. Therefore, groups of women hunters spent a lot on kind of 'hiring' expedition leaders ignoring their social statuses. Now, over the time, several female hunters have aced themselves strong enough to lead expeditions on their own.

However, it was never easy for females to fight all the way up here and get the society's approval to go out hunting. Same as objecting for women earning for the family or working in factories/ industries, everyone had queries such as, why it was really necessary for women to get the full access to hunting or travelling alone.

This increase in popularity of hunting among the middle class and women reflects broader shifts in the society. These days, we get to see a lot more change in the social and economic structure of the country - improvement in road transportation, removing gender restrictions in several areas etc. All these should help mark an era when some crucial mentalities evolved, and later in the future when these acceptance would open ways for women in every other activity, this period of time will be remembered.

Caution on the Road!

Wild beast reported walking loose on the road

ACCORDING TO SEVERAL RECENT REPORTS, A FIERCE BEAST OF THE CANIDAE FAMILY WAS SPOTTED BY THE ROAD SIDE OF THE SOUTHERN COUNTRYSIDE OF LONDON. UNLIKE FOXES OR WOLVES, WHICH LOCAL THERE ARE MORE ACCUSTOMED TO SEEING AND HUNTING DOWN, THE MAMMAL HAD A SHORT, UGLIER HEAD SUPPORTED BY AN ENORMOUS, THICK NECK WHICH STOOD ALMOST TWICE AS HIGH AS THE OTHERS. ACCORDING TO SPECTATORS, THE BEAST, HOWEVER FIERCE, GETS STARTLED BY THE NOISES OF MOTORCARS, CARTS OR EVEN BY THE HORSES; WHICH ENSURES THAT IT HAS MISTAKENLY LANDED HERE AMONG THE CIVILIZATION. THE WILD-LIVES AND FOREST DEPARTMENT HAS REPORTEDLY STARTED WORKING IN CAPTURING THE ANIMAL - WHICH BY ABOVE MENTIONED DETAILS IS BEING THOUGHT TO BE A HYENA. MEANWHILE, TRAVELLERS ARE REQUESTED TO KEEP THEIR SENSES ALERT TO AVOID ACCIDENTS.

If you cannot talk
among yourselves -
talk through us!

Couple Counselor

We help you Embrace the best future together

124 OXFORD STREET, LONDON

Smith And Associates

DIVORCE LAWYER

END THE MISERY
TODAY!

114 OXFORD STREET,
LONDON

INSPIRED BY “ESME” BY SAKI

SUBMITTED BY
ABEDA ZAHID CHANDRICA
ID 22341061
ENG115 (SEC 02)

